DIGITAL HEARTS Provides Debugging and English and Simplified Chinese Translation Services via “ella translation service,” Which Utilizes a Proprietary, Game-Specialized AI Translation Engine, for “TOKYO BEAST”

DIGITAL HEARTS HOLDINGS Co., Ltd. (Headquarters: Shinjuku, Tokyo; President and CEO: Toshiya Tsukushi; TSE Prime Stock Code: 3676) is proud to announce the role of its subsidiary company DIGITAL HEARTS Co., Ltd. (Headquarters: Shinjuku, Tokyo; President: Toshiya Tsukushi; hereinafter "DIGITAL HEARTS") in providing debugging services as well as English and Simplified Chinese translation services via “ella translation service,” which utilizes DIGITAL HEARTS’ proprietary, game-specialized AI translation engine, for the strategy/battle game “TOKYO BEAST,” a project conceived of by TOKYO GameFi, Inc. (Headquarters: Shibuya, Tokyo; President: Taro Yamamoto), a capital participation partner of DIGITAL HEARTS.

“TOKYO BEAST” is a strategy/battle game where humans live alongside advanced, autonomous androids in a futuristic metropolis, and is published by TOKYO BEAST FZCO (Headquarters: Dubai, UAE; CEO: Tomoe Mizutani). The application of blockchain technology enables the game to feature a betting mechanic, and the key currency of the game, “TOKYO GAMES TOKEN (TGT),” was simultaneously listed on four major, international cryptocurrency exchanges last month, including Bybit. Such novel factors have drawn plenty of attention, with over one million users pre-registering for the highly anticipated launch on June 9.

DIGITAL HEARTS will continue supporting the title’s global release by providing services that emphasize both quality and speed.
